THE REV. S. BROOKS KNOWLTON IS SPEAKER AT THANKSGIVING SERVICE HELD BY PROTESTANT CHURCHES

Presbyterian Pastor Says Adversity May Be Blessing in Disguise—Thanksgiving Rises to Its Fullest Grandeur When There Seems Little to Be Thankful For

"I will sing unto God, for he hath dealt bountifully with me."

The above was the text taken by the Rev. S. Brooks Knowlton, pastor of the Bristol Presbyterian Church, who was the speaker at the union Thanksgiving service held yesterday morning under the auspices of the Protestant churches of Bristol.

The service was held in the Sunday School room of the Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour and it was well attended.

The Rev. Knowlton took his text from Psalm 13:6 and spoke as follows:

"The striking feature of this text is that it was spoken not from a heart made happy by an abundance of material blessings, but from a heart challenged by adversity to a fuller trust in God. This is the paradox of thanksgiving: that it rises to its fullest grandeur when there seems to be but little to be thankful for, and that it becomes a mere form, stilted and meaningless, in a time of abundance.

"Atheism thrives only in times of prosperity. Again and again we have seen the heart stifled by material things. Again and again we have seen the heart blaze up again in love and faith and sympathy and trust when those material things have been taken away.

"Just one year ago today I had the pleasure of seeing the face of a poor huckster light up with a radiance that was almost holy as he told me the story of the Thanksgiving dinner he did not eat. It came about in this way. By close economy he had managed to save enough for a fine dinner for his family. But just as he was sitting down to it, he heard weeping on the other side of the thin wall that separated his home from the next. He investigated, and found a mother and her three children without food and without fire,—pitiful, hungry, hopeless. His response to their need was immediate. His Thanksgiving dinner went at once to their home, while he and his family dined from the scraps that were left in the house. Never did he raise more grateful thanks to God than for that dinner he did not eat. For he found a blessing deeper than the one he had resigned, the joy of helpfulness.

"Being thankful," someone has said, "is the most precarious and even perilous of our moral moods." Especially is this so when we are thankful for material things, even today's dinner. For the first instinct of thankfulness is to measure one's goods not from the good we can get from them and the opportunities they give to us to be useful, but by contrast with the lack of others.

"Most hucksters, and most of us, would have eaten our dinner, thanking God for it more fervently, and carried the scraps to the poor woman, giving that which cost us nothing, and losing the greater blessing.

"The temptation of thankfulness is that we will confine our thankfulness to that which others do not have. We see the struggles of other nations and thank God we are Americans. We see the headlines announcing two million deaths from famine in China and thank God for prosperity. We see the neighbors across the street struck down by unemployment and threatened by poverty and thank God for our jobs. All of which is well and good. But it is not enough. We must go farther than that. Such thanksgiving tends toward selfishness, and selfishness tends toward self-righteousness.

ST. ANN'S AND BRISTOL BATTLE TO EVEN SCORE

Elvens Evenly Matched in Holiday Grid Contest Played Here

MAKE MANY FUMBLES

By T. M. Juno

Meeting for the second time this season, the Bristol A. A. and Bristol St. Ann's elvens battled to a scoreless tie on Sullivan's field yesterday.

In the forty-eight minutes of play both teams passed up chances to score and each refused to wilt when their goal line was in danger.

The "Saints" used straight football to reach the A. A.'s goal twice, but never could cross it. The A. A.'s chief method of offense was forward passing which was worked to a fine advantage. Barrett, right end of Bristol A. A., was on the receiving end of several passes.

Both teams did quite a bit of fumbling because of the high wind that was blowing across the field during the entire game. The kicking was hindered by this wind and in cases it was very hard to punt out of danger.

They were harsh penalties that stopped the "Saints" from scoring. In the third quarter, beginning a line drive from their own ten yard line, the Purple and Gold reached the visitors' fifteen-yard mark before losing the ball. In between plays there were three penalties of fifteen-yards each and two for off-sides. This made a total of 150 yards gained from scrimmage without scoring a touchdown.

In the final session the Dorrance street boys again began a drive which brought them to the ten-yard line of the A. A. but again the A's held and then punted out of danger.

MERCURY DROPS TO 14 HERE TODAY

Whipped by whistling, biting winds the 1930 winter season's first bonafide cold snap swept into Pennsylvania today, sending the mercury to new low levels, tying up traffic and bringing suffering and death in its wake.

The thermometer in Bristol got as low as 14 at the greenhouses of J. C. Schmidt, florist, where hourly readings are kept.

Mr. Schmidt said he believes this the lowest temperature recorded in November.

The Western Pennsylvania sector bore the brunt of King Winter's assault, temperatures ranging from eight degrees above down to zero as the thermometer's indicator shortened point by point in the early morning hours.

Relief was promised by weather bureau observers who said, nevertheless, that "it will get worse before it gets better." Predictions were that the mercury would dip below zero during the day, slowly rising again toward nightfall.

Zero weather was reported in Swissvale and Bloomfield in the Pittsburgh district at 7 o'clock this morning. Several points in the outlying sections also reported zero temperatures.

Pittsburgh's first cold weather fatality was Andrew Rupchest, 45, found dead in his bedroom. The coroner's office reported that prior exposure had caused death.

Highways throughout the western portion of the state and even city streets were covered with snow and ice today. Hazardous automotive traffic conditions were rendered less dangerous through heroic work by State Highway Department employees who patrolled all familiar "bad spots," keeping the roads cindered.

Numerous automobile crashes were reported among those who ventured to drive while hundreds of motorists who had neglected cold weather precautions found their radiators frozen.

King Winter also tightened his grip on the eastern half of the State. icy winds coupled with clear skies sent the mercury tumbling to new low levels for the year with temperatures ranging from 10 above zero in the Pocono Mountain region of the northern section to 20 above in the Philadelphia district.

Harold M. Daseburg Weds Miss Harriet C. Cox

HULMEVILLE, Nov. 28.—Residents of Hulmeville were participants in a Thanksgiving season wedding, on Wednesday, when Miss Harriet C. Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Cox, of Bellevue avenue, became the wife of Harold H. Daseburg, also of Bellevue avenue, formerly of Archibald, Pa.

The nuptials took place in Doylestown, the Rev. G. M. Whitenack, pastor of a Doylestown Presbyterian Church, performing the ceremony at the parsonage at 10 a. m.

The former Miss Cox was garbed in a dark blue silk dress, black hat and gloves. The couple was unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. Daseburg left immediately after the wedding for a motor trip to Archibald where they visited relatives of the groom for two days, returning to Hulmeville last night. They plan to reside with the bride's parents here.

The bride is assistant postmistress at the South Langhorne post office; and Mr. Daseburg, who has made his home in Hulmeville for the past several months, is employed at the plant of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation, Bristol.

"BRIDGE OF HONOR" IS HELD BY SEA SCOUTS

Attended by Over 100 Sea Scouts, Executives and Committeemen

FIRST TO BE CONDUCTED

The first Sea Scout ball and "bridge of honor" to be held in Bucks County took place Wednesday night in the Morrisville Community House. Over 100 Sea Scouts, executives from the Bucks County Council and ship committeemen and friends were present.

J. Lee Callahan, regional Sea Scout director of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and Virginia, which states comprise Region 3, was the guest of honor. Mayor Thomas Stockham of Morrisville, made the various awards.

The Sea Scout ship "Elks" from Bristol were awarded a large banner for winning the regatta championship staged at Bristol last September. Ordinary Sea Scouts received their ordinary badges. Four scouts from the Bristol ship, Coxswains Fred Herman and Robert Hendricks, along with Verdin Watt and Walter Kornstedt, received their badges. Ten Scouts from the South Langhorne ship also were made ordinary sea scouts.

Wednesday night's affair was the first Sea Scout ball and "bridge of honor" to be held in the United States, and attracted much attention from National Scout Headquarters and other Sea Scout units. The affair was formal, the Scouts and officers being in uniform while the ladies wore the customary evening dresses.

The dances were named in seagoing terms and the hall was decorated in ship fashion. A ship's bridge was built for the affair and the awards were made by Mayor Stockham from the bridge. The ball was a very colorful affair. Music was furnished by a Philadelphia orchestra.

Nearly all the Sea Scouts and ship committeemen from the Bristol ship were present. The ball was voted a huge success by all present and it will become an annual affair. There are three Sea Scout ships in the county. They are the S. S. "Elks" of Bristol, "The Yankee Clipper" from South Langhorne, and the "Robert Morris" from Morrisville.

The affair was a success beyond expectation. Women of the committee, headed by Mrs. H. K. Mellendorf, said later that the money was badly needed by the society, particularly the animal refuge which has taken care of hundreds of animals since it was opened about six months ago.

Other members of the committee in charge were Mrs. Laura Livezey, Mrs. Wilson Jones, Mrs. Laura Thoman, Mrs. Guynne, Mrs. Gilbert Mead and Mrs. John Earl. They expressed the greatest appreciation of the generosity and co-operation of citizens who helped make it a success.

Doylestown Armory Is Closed to Public Affairs

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 28.—Following an inspection of the Sixth Regiment Armory on Shewell avenue the Bureau of Inspection of the State Department of Labor and Industry, Harrisburg, has issued an order that closes the Armory building to all public gatherings of any description except military drill by National Guards until another fire door exit and a reserve electric lighting system are installed.

The State Armory fund appropriation is not large enough to allow for the changes to be made so that the closing order has been officially issued from Harrisburg. A number of other armories in the state have also been condemned by the state inspection.

This means, that unless $2,000 is raised in some manner, the bid submitted to make the necessary changes, the Armory will be closed this winter. It will be impossible to play basketball in the Armory, to hold dances or any other type of entertainment.

Lieut. Henry Ullman stated last night that the order will go into effect immediately. Company D has no fund available to make the necessary changes so unless the state revokes the order, and it is not likely that it will, the place will be closed tight unless a public fund is raised to make the changes.

MICHAEL J. KEATING WEDS MISS McHUGH

Ceremony Performed at Nuptial Mass in St. Mark's Church

REV. BURNS OFFICIATES

An attractive wedding took place yesterday at 10 a. m. in St. Mark's Church, when Miss Helen Patricia McHugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McHugh, of 708 Corson street, became the bride of Michael J. Keating, son of Mrs. Maurice Keating, of 549 Linden street.

The Rev. J. J. Burns, a curate of the parish, performed the ceremony, which was celebrated with a nuptial mass. Miss Kathryn Keating, of Linden street, an aunt of the groom, presided at the organ.

Miss Anna E. Archer, of Bristol, and Miss Mary Green, of Philadelphia, were the bride's attendants, while Frank Keating, brother of the groom, served as best man.

Little Maurice Heilman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Heilman, of Wilson avenue and Jackson street, and a nephew of the groom, was the ring-bearer, and the ushers were Maurice Keating, a brother of the groom, and Frank Hurley.

The bride looked particularly attractive in a gown of ivory toned satin, made with a close-fitting bodice, the yoke and sleeves of which were fashioned of Duchess lace. A flounce of Duchess lace also enriched the ankle-length skirt, which fell slightly longer in back. With this she also wore a veil and train of Duchess lace, the head-dress of which was fashioned cap effect with a cluster of orange blossoms on either side, to which was attached a chin strap of tulle. White satin slippers and a shower bouquet of bridal roses completed her costume. Her only adornment was a string of pearls.

Miss Archer wore a strikingly smart frock of peach toned satin, which was close fitting in effect, and sleeveless, and made with the new high waist line from which the full flaring skirt of ankle length and uneven hem line fell in graceful folds. The neck line was rounded front and back and a short pointed cape, trimmed with a cluster of flowers of the material embellished the back of the gown. A narrow belt of like tone satin encircled the waist and was held in place with a buckle of brilliants. With this, Miss Archer wore a cloche-shaped hat of peach-toned velvet, devoid of trimming except for a loop and long ends of the velvet, which fell over her right shoulder. Peach toned satin slippers which matched the gown, nude-toned stockings and shoulder length white kid gloves were also worn, and she carried an arm bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses.

Miss Green was gowned in a rich model of turquoise blue-toned satin, which emphasized the richness of simplicity. This frock was also of round neck line, sleeveless and close-fitting. The full flaring skirt, which was also ankle-length, was interestingly fashioned in a scalloped line about the high waist line, which was encircled with a narrow belt of the material. The only trimming of the frock was a cluster of flowers of like material on the right side of the belt. Her slippers, with this attire, were of turquoise blue-toned satin, the exact shade of her frock, and her hat was cloche-shaped, of turquoise blue velvet and trimmed with a loop and two long ends of velvet, which fell over her right shoulder. She also wore shoulder-length white kid gloves and carried an arm bouquet of Helen pink rose-buds.

Miss Green and Miss Archer each wore a triple strand of pearls, having a crystal fastening, both having been gifts from the bride.

CREW, SCANTILY DRESSED, PICKS WAY OVER PIPE LINE TO SHORE AS HUGE TONGUES OF FLAMES CONSUME CRAFT

Blaze Lights Up River for Miles—Oil Tanks Explode As Heat Becomes Intense—Missing Man Last Seen Standing On Burning Barge—May Have Been Picked Up by Boat

Swept by fire from stem to stern, a 20-inch pipe-line dredge was burned to the water's edge and then sank early yesterday morning at the mouth of Neshaminy Creek, off Croydon, three miles below here.

Thirteen members of the crew picked their way over a pipe line, stretching from the dredge to the lowlands. The men were scantily garbed, having been aroused from their beds by the crackling of the flames as they licked up the wooden framework. The river was illuminated for miles as the tongues of flames leaped into the air.

Tanks of oil on the dredge exploded from time to time and added fuel to the flames.

One of the crew is missing. He is Euclid Garrior, 35, of Boston, who was last seen on the deck of the burning craft.

The fire was one of the most spectacular ever seen on the upper Delaware. The dredge, 130 feet long, with a forty-foot beam, burned from end to end. Muffled explosions of gallons of oil, for the craft's Diesel engines, became ignited.

The dredge, owned by the Trimount Dredging Co., of Boston, was valued at $250,000. Members of the crew said the craft is a total loss. The company was engaged by the War Department to deepen the channel to twenty feet from Beverly to Trenton, N. J.

Captain Richard W. Francis, master of the dredge, was not on the craft when the fire started at 3.20 a. m. He left Wednesday for his home in Boston to spend Thanksgiving Day with his family.

Abram Barrett, one of the crew, was in charge. He said most of the men were sleeping when the fire started in the wooden craft. Fed by oil, the flames spread quickly. The men, dressing hurriedly, clambered over the side of the dredge to the pipe line, which was connected to it, and walked over the water and marshland to shore. They were taken to the Croydon Square Club.

For miles the river was lighted up and residents of Croydon on the Pennsylvania side, and Beverly on the New Jersey shore, lined the river bank and watched the fire. Little could be done to check the flames.

As the dredge sank at 6.10 a. m., just as day was breaking, liberated oil, catching fire from the dredge, spread over the surface of the water for several acres, but soon died out and burned itself out.

When the dredge sank, the fireboat Rudolph Blankenburg, of Philadelphia, was only a few hundred feet away, and was forced by the burning oil to turn downstream. By special permission the Blankenburg had been dispatched to the scene at the request of the fire companies fighting the fire.

Firemen from Bristol were called, and later from Croydon. The river is nearly three-quarters of a mile wide at this point. This prevented firemen from reaching it with hose lines for an hour, until sufficient hose was obtained to stretch to it, carried out by men in rowboats.

HIGH SCHOOL SOPHOMORE KILLED; SISTER INJURED

Girls Were Returning to Croydon Home When Accident Occurred

STEPPED AROUND A BUS

CROYDON, Nov. 28.—A girl was killed and her sister injured early last evening when they stepped from and walked around the rear of a bus on the Bristol Pike at Maynes Lane into the path of an automobile.

The car which struck the children was driven by Mrs. William Fitzgerald, 111 Radcliffe street, Bristol. Mrs. Fitzgerald swerved her machine over into the trolley tracks in an effort to avoid striking the children.

Dead: May Waters, 16, Wyoming avenue.

Injured: Dorothy Waters, 15, Wyoming avenue, cuts, bruises and a fractured ankle.

The two Waters sisters were returning to their home here after attending a matinee performance at a Bristol moving picture house. In taking a bus the girls got aboard the bus which went down the Bristol Pike instead of the one which goes down the State Road and, which would have taken them nearer their home. As the bus reached Maynes Lane the sisters decided to get off and take a short cut to their home via Maynes Lane.

May Waters was a sophomore in the Bristol High School, a Girl Scout and a member of the Wilkinson Memorial M. E. Church.

The two girls are the two oldest children of the Waters family. May is survived by three sisters, one brother and father and mother. The family has resided here for a number of years.

The accident was investigated by Patrolman Hohlefelder, South Langhorne barracks.

THE POOR LITTLE CITY BOY

To the small boy in the crowded city—and to his small sister, too, for that matter—the time "when a feller needs a friend" is almost any time.

For in spite of everything cities can do to increase the number of playgrounds—and no city has enough of them—the poor little city child, that is the really young child, doesn't have half a chance when it comes to finding an open space where he can play in safety and comfort.

The streets? It is dinned into his ears day in and day out that he must keep out of the streets. They belong to the great god Traffic.

The alleys? Youthful pilots of delivery trucks make of them a speedway. It is essential, furthermore, that they be used by owners of rear-entrance garages. "You mustn't play in the alleys!"

The sidewalks? They belong by right to the pedestrian, a right disputed daily by older children on speeding bicycles.

There remain the backyard and the front lawn—in sections where they exist.

So what domain is there where the King of Play may entertain his childish subjects? And why should it be wondered at if such items as this appear day after day in the newspapers:

"A lost boy, about three or four years old, is being held by the police, who are trying to ascertain where he lives. It is believed he wandered away from home."

Wandered away, perhaps, at the beck of childhood imaginings that surely in a city so big and so rich there must be a place to play.

OPPORTUNITIES
Among the discoveries of the recent Federal census is that the average manufacturer in so-called hard times is more concerned about quality and rock-bottom prices than in boom times. When money is scarce the ultimate consumer buys carefully and shrewdly.

This does not mean that the manufacturer intentionally lowers the quality of his goods in prosperous years, but demand being in excess of supply he steps up his output and consequently workmanship is less careful and inspections more lax. Another reason is that the percentage of second-grade labor is larger in factories operating at full capacity.

This matter of higher quality, coupled with the lowest prices in several years, lends force to the "Buy Now" plea. Here is a "well-bare" campaign which pays tangible dividends to the subscriber right on the spot.

There are spare dollars for those goods that merchant, manufacturer and producer can well spare. And there is the satisfaction, added to that of possession, of knowing that buying now is putting men and women to work.

It's funny about a fellow getting more health out of the game he plays for fun, instead of for his health.

A republic is a land in which the vote of one half-wit can determine whether a candidate is a great statesman or a nobody.

"Every intelligent person is aware of the vital role which smooth-working stomach and bowels play in our general health, and even in such seemingly far-removed matters as unsightly complexion, unsatisfying sleep, and absence of mental and physical alertness."

"Flaxolyn has a beneficial effect on the entire digestive and eliminative organs."
"DRUGGISTS' GENEROUS OFFER—Any druggist here will supply you with an economical bottle of Flaxolyn and guarantee that you will note the improvement in health and appearance by the sixth pleasant spoonful, or you may return the partly-used bottle and get your money back!"

Dr. Oskar Spatz, who endorses Flaxolyn so highly, is in charge of the health of hundreds of workers and their families. He is a specialist in nervous internal and metabolic cases.

St. Ann's and Bristol Battle to Even Score

showed a distinct advantage over the "Saints" was in the third when a forward passing attack brought the ball to the St. Ann's fifteen yard line but the A. A. then made the mistake of trying the "Saints" line and were held to three downs and then on the fourth down, David tried for a field goal which was low and wide of its mark.

Barrett and Spadaccino were the stars for their respective teams. Barrett worked well on the offense where he caught seven forwards thrown by both Dougherty and Trott. He also broke down several of the St. Ann's plays on the defense.

Spadaccino gained considerable yardage from scrimmage for his team and was the chief instigator of that which brought the ball to the A. A.'s goal line twice.

Oriola played well on the defense for the St. Ann's boys and did well as pivot man on the offense.

On Sunday, the St. Ann's eleven will play the Venango Bears on Sullivan's field.

little black velvet suit and white satin blouse. He carried the ring on a small white satin pillow.

Preceding the entrance of the bridal party, Miss Kathryn Keating, of South Langhorne, a cousin of the groom, sang "I Love You Truly," and

Percy G. Ford, of Bristol, rendered "Because."

The wedding party approached the sanctuary to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, and during the ceremony Percy G. Ford sang "Oh, Promise Me."

Preceding the mass, St. Mark's choir sang the "Kyrie" from Gantz's Second Mass, and at the Offertory, "Ave Maria," by Bailey, was sung by Miss Kathryn Keating, of South Langhorne, Mrs. E. M. Keating and Percy G. Ford rendered a duet, "Oh Lord, I Am Not Worthy," at the celebration of the Holy Communion, and at the conclusion of the mass, Mrs. Keating and Mr. Ford sang the sacred duet, "To Thee I Love."

The wedding party left the church as Mendelssohn's Wedding March pealed forth.

Following the ceremony a breakfast was served to the bridal party and members of the families at the Wright Inn, where covers were laid for thirty, after which a reception was tendered the happy couple at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McHugh, of 708 Corson street.

Mr. and Mrs. Keating have left for Canada, where they will pass a two-weeks' honeymoon. Upon their return, which will be via the New England States, they will reside with the bride's parents on Corson street.

The bride traveled in a sapphire blue toned flax crepe dress, simply trimmed with poudre blue toned crepe. Her wrap was of black with kit fox fur trimming, her hat a close-fitting felt of sapphire blue felt to match her frock, and her slippers were of ring lizard.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Keating are members of a wide circle of friends, having been born here and educated in St. Mark's parochial school. Mrs. Keating was later graduated from Rider College, Trenton, N. J., and has been engaged in a clerical position with the Bell Telephone Company in Philadelphia.

Mr. Keating holds a clerical position with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at the 32nd street office, Philadelphia.

Mr. Keating is grand knight of the local branch of the Knights of Columbus.

That a working man should own a car in England is inconceivable. That his children should have opportunity to enter college unless specially gifted, and then only with great sacrifice, is undreamed of. The material and cultural privileges of Americans stand unsurpassed. Though we may have somewhat to lower our standard, even doing without some things we think necessities—necessities, by the way, which in a hundred years have multiplied from 12 to 94, as our wants have multiplied from 72 to 484—yet this lowering will bring the great mass of us no real hardship.

"Here and there are cases of suffering, acute suffering, but we should rejoice that from the material standpoint there is no need for anyone to suffer from lack of material things. Intelligent distribution of goods, more sympathy and understanding, better cooperation between individuals, communities, and nations could eliminate all these evils. God's providence has assured, even with drought and failure of crops, enough for all, including those two millions in China. It is the failure of man, not of God, that brings want."

"It is because of man's failure here, a failure brought about by a lack of that true thankfulness that expresses itself in sympathetic action, that our present depression may prove to be a blessing in disguise. It may serve to make America realize anew her community of interests. It may serve to break down any temptation that might exist,—nay, that does exist,—toward self-righteousness and selfish contentment. It may serve to recall America from her worship of material things, her 'dollar philosophy,' to a renewed interest in her real standards, those richer blessings that called forth the first Thanksgiving—dependence upon God, not mammon; cooperation, not competition; sympathy, not selfishness; gifts of life, not gifts of goods."

"So Vachel Lindsay speaks his thanks in these words: 'We are grateful to the God of our Fathers, the Lord of Heaven, for the check and chastening that has come with the falling of the idols of advertising and of gold...'

"We are grateful for all the second thoughts and self-examination forced upon us by the falling of the idols of advertising and of gold. We are grateful to discover that when every special and unique procedure proclaimed by mammon as binding upon our citizenship has been wiped off the land, the land remains intact, resolute, firm-knitted, high-resolved, and far wiser in its hopes than before, more tender in heart, more merciful, a pioneer's land again, lean, strong, clear-eyed once more."

"It may be that our greatest cause for thanksgiving today will be one which we recognize not at all as a blessing, the blessing of 'hard times.' It may be that 'hard times' will point us to better times, that removing the material may reveal the spiritual, that stripping off a hard layer of self-satisfaction may uncover a sympathetic heart, that the snatching from us of gifts which have satisfied us completely, may lay bare a gift beyond price."

"Hard times' may reveal to us, as Paul revealed to the Corinthians, a more excellent way. Faith, hope, love, these three.' We may learn, as Paul did, in whatsoever state we are, therein to be content."

"There is a greater urge behind this universe than bread. There is a greater purpose behind life than that of keeping up with the Joneses. There is a greater end in store for us than a grave with an elaborate stone. There are words which are mightier than 'dollar' or 'prosperity' or even 'success.' There is 'faith,' 'hope,' 'love.' America has known them. America was built by them. Perhaps she is now to be reborn into them. Perhaps dealt bountifully with me."

again she will sing to God. Perhaps again she will behold the Christ.

"I prayed for light; the sun went down in clouds,

The moon was darkened by a misty doubt.

The stars of heaven were dimmed by earthly fears,

And all my little candle flames burnt out;

But while I sat in shadow, wrapped in night,

The face of Christ made all the darkness bright."

—(A. J. Flint)

"I will sing unto God, for he hath now to be reborn into them. Perhaps dealt bountifully with me."
